Taching — Red Banner on China's Industrial Front

大庆——中国工业战线上的一面红旗

This booklet tells how this Red Banner commended by Chairman Mao on the industrial front — the Taching Oilfield — has been exploited and constructed in the past 11 years.

When China met with temporary economic difficulties in 1960, imperialism, revisionism and reactionaries joined hands against China. It was at this time that the Taching workers started to build the oilfield. Led by the Chinese Communist Party, the Taching people, inspired by their study of Chairman Mao's "On Practice", "On Contradiction" and other works, built a first-rate oilfield at Taching in less than three years, displaying the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and hard struggle. Since the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution, they have followed Chairman Mao's strategic plan closely, grasped revolution and promoted production, and thus given further impetus to Taching's development.

The exploitation and construction of the Taching Oilfield is a great revolutionary example in China's industrial history. The road of Taching embodies Chairman Mao's revolutionary line in developing China's industry.

Tachai — Standard Bearer in China's Agriculture

大寨——中国农业战线上的一面红旗

Tachai is a production brigade in the mountain area of the north China province of Shansi. Led by its Party branch, the former poor and lower-middle peasants persist in putting proletarian politics in command, give full play to the revolutionary spirit of self-reliance and hard work and have transformed the slope wasteland into fields giving high, stable yields. They have changed a village extremely poor before liberation, so that it is now part of the thriving new socialist countryside. The road of Tachai is the road pointed out by Chairman Mao for developing China's socialist agriculture. In 1964 Chairman Mao issued the great call "In agriculture, learn from Tachai", unfolding a vigorous countryside movement to learn from the Tachai Brigade and speeding the development of agriculture.

This booklet tells of Tachai's tremendous achievements in building a new socialist countryside, and of the radical changes in the look of China's countryside following the movement to learn from Tachai.

Great Changes in Tibet

西藏巨变

Tibet is situated on China's southwest border. Before liberation it was a hell on earth, where the Tibetan people, under the rule of the darkest and most reactionary feudal serfdom, were cruelly exploited and oppressed by the three manorial lords: the reactionary Tibetan local governments, monasteries and nobility. They eked out a miserable existence. After liberation, particularly since the million serfs co-ordinated with the People's Liberation Army in putting down the Dalai traitorous clique's counter-revolutionary rebellion in 1959 and victoriously carried out the Democratic Reform, they have become masters of the country and Tibet has become a new world. Since the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution the situation in Tibet has become still better. The emancipated serfs have conscientiously studied Mao Tsetung Thought and their mental outlook has undergone profound changes. Rapid progress has been made in Tibet's socialist revolution and construction. People's living standards rise steadily and a vast number of Tibetan cadres are maturing in the course of revolution and construction. Today a thriving scene prevails in Tibet. This booklet will give the reader a general picture of the profound changes undergone in Tibet since liberation.

New Archaeological Finds in China

中国新出土文物

During the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution, China's archaeological workers, guided by Chairman Mao's revolutionary line and supported and assisted by the broad worker, peasant and soldier masses, have done a great deal of work in preserving and excavating cultural objects. They have unearthed and classified many historical sites and tombs, and discovered a great number of valuable relics dating from 2,000 years B.C. to the Ming Dynasty in the 17th century. Among the relics are many new, or rarely seen, finds important in the scientific study and understanding of the political, economic, cultural and military aspects of different dynasties in Chinese history, as well as of the friendly intercourse that existed between China and other lands.

This book describes some of the excavations and the cultural objects unearthed during the Cultural Revolution.

Travels in China (1966-71)

by Rewi Alley

Published by the New World Press

中国见闻

Rewi Alley, of New Zealand, has been devoting much of the fifth decade of his life in China to revisiting the Chinese countryside and cities with which he is so familiar, and recording what he sees with pen and camera.

Travels in China is the latest of the author's books. Rewi Alley describes his travels during the first years of the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution. His journeys took him to the provinces of Hunan, Hopei, Shantung, Kiangsi, Kwangtung, Heilungkiang, Chekiang, Kiangsu and Shansi, and the cities of Shanghai, Peking and Tientsin. Among the spokesmen who told him their stories were Red Guards on long marches, men and women workers of several of China's different nationalities, Revolutionary Committee leaders whom he met in factories and communes, and foresters with whom he chatted in the mountains. The accounts of how the ordinary people live, think and struggle in the period of the Cultural Revolution are thus vivid, on the spot, and showing in concrete terms the progress made during critical years of China's continuing revolution.

A chapter is devoted to the revolution in education, in which the author gives an explanation of why and how it is being carried out in the schools and universities.

This is an informative and heart-warming book on contemporary China. The author's poetry intersperses the prose; his photographs bring many of the places, and especially the people, into clear focus.

New Women in New China

今日中国妇女

The articles in this booklet furnish information on the changes in the political and economic life of Chinese women since liberation. All reflect the fresh approach, the new spirit with which China's liberated women take their place in industry, in agriculture, in culture and education.

Included are reports on the Taching women's oil extracting team, which has done good work in one of the country's well-known oil fields. Another is that of the "Iron Girls" team of Tachai, a pioneer agricultural brigade which has transformed barren hillsides into the fertile land of a prosperous socialist countryside in Shansi Province.

Described is the testing out by women electricians in Kwangchow of free operation on live ultra-high-tension power lines, as are the beginnings and growth of China's first generation of women pilots, deep-sea fisherwomen and women bridge builders.

In addition, the booklet includes articles by model worker Lu Yu-lan, a member of the Ninth Central Committee of the Communist Party of China; by the former slave Pasang, now vice-chairman of the revolutionary committee of the Tibet Autonomous Region, and by Lin Chiao-chih (Dr. Khati Lim), well-known gynecologist and obstetrician, who tell about their political and economic emancipation and their efforts in serving the people.

The Heroic Korean People

英雄的朝鲜人民

Conveying their own deep feelings and those of the Chinese people, the Chinese Journalists' Delegation paid a friendly visit to China's fraternal neighbour, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, from late April to early June, 1971.

This booklet contains several articles written by the delegates and photographs they took, from which we can see how the heroic Korean people, under the wise leadership of the Workers' Party of Korea headed by their great leader Comrade Kim Il Sung, have not only swiftly healed their war wounds but have succeeded brilliantly in all aspects of constructing their socialist economy and national defence. It shows how the Korean people have done this by firmly opposing imperialism and by displaying the revolutionary spirit of independence, initiative and hard work, so that the Democratic People's Republic of Korea is today a mighty fortress in the East against imperialism.

Three Major Struggles on China's Philosophical Front (1949-64)

1949—1964年中国哲学战线上的三次大斗争

The four articles presented in this booklet were written by the Revolutionary Mass Criticism Writing Group of the Party School under the Chinese Communist Party Central Committee. All deal with the three major philosophical debates concerning principle in New China that took place between 1949 and 1964.

These contests on the philosophical front centred around the questions of China's economic base and superstructure, of whether there is identity between thinking and being, and of "one divides into two" or "combine two into one.” With the political swindler Liu Shao-chi and company giving the cues, these debates were provoked by Liu’s agent in philosophical circles, Yang Hsien-chen, at crucial moments in the struggle between the proletariat and the bourgeoisie, between the socialist and capitalist roads, and between Chairman Mao’s proletarian revolutionary line and the counter-revolutionary revisionist line of Liu Shao-chi.

These contests between dialectical materialism and historical materialism on the one hand and idealism and metaphysics on the other were fierce, and they reflected on the philosophical front the sharp class struggle in China and abroad.

Philosophy Is No Mystery

—Peasants Put Their Study to Work

哲学的解放

This collection of stories of Chinchien Production Brigade, in one of the people’s communes in China’s Chekiang Province, tells how its members study and apply philosophy. It offers background materials on the upsurge of the mass movement to study Chairman Mao’s philosophic writings, and how philosophy is liberated from the confines of the philosophers' lecture rooms and textbooks, and made a sharp weapon in the hands of the masses.

The poor and lower-middle peasants of Chinchien Production Brigade have torn through the veil of mystery surrounding philosophy. They have studied materialist dialectics through the three revolutionary movements — class struggle, the struggle for production and scientific experiment — especially the struggle between socialism and capitalism. Using this method, they solve practical problems in life and work and have gained much both ideologically and politically.

The experience of Chinchien Production Brigade proves beyond doubt that the labouring masses can master philosophy. They study philosophy in the struggle and for the struggle.

These accounts of poor and lower-middle peasants studying and applying philosophy also tell of the acute and complicated struggle between the proletariat and the bourgeoisie, between the socialist and the capitalist roads and between the proletarian revolutionary line and the counter-revolutionary revisionist line existing in China's countryside.

Serving the People with Dialectics

打开了花生增产的秘密

These six stories tell some of the recent successes of China's workers, peasants and scientific workers in all fields, achieved by applying Chairman Mao's philosophic thinking.

Among them are a story of poor and lower-middle peasants probing the laws of growing peanuts and substantially increasing yield, of vegetable storehouse keepers keeping tomatoes, onions and cabbages garden fresh, of postmen delivering several hundred dead letters. Application is shown of Chairman Mao's philosophic thinking and materialist dialectics in performing these useful services to the people, helping readers understand the revolutionary spirit and scientific attitude of China's worker and peasant masses.

Exploring the Secrets of Treating Deaf-Mutes

在打开聋哑“禁区”的道路上

China's success in treating deaf-mutes, long regarded as a "forbidden zone" in medical science, is attracting great attention throughout the world.

This booklet presents factual material telling of army medical worker Chao Pu-yu and his comrades' success in treating deaf-mutism with the traditional acupuncture method. This important contribution to medical and health work has been made possible by the comrades' devotion to the revolution and their diligent study and application of Chairman Mao's philosophic concepts. Chao Pu-yu has cured other diseases, using the same method.

Scaling Peaks in Medical Science

努力攀登医学高峰

China's recent successes in medical and health work have been achieved by medical workers guided by Chairman Mao's proletarian revolutionary line, especially since the beginning of the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution in 1966. After smashing the counter-revolutionary revisionist line pushed by the renegade, hidden traitor and scab Liu Shao-chi, medical advance has been speeded, and amazing cures developed. A patient with several needles, or even one, inserted at certain points on the body is anaesthetized for minor or major surgery. The insertion of a slender needle enables deaf-mutes to hear and speak. The same needle makes the blind see, and paralytics stand and walk. With simple facilities and little experience medical workers removed a 45 kgs. tumour, for a patient pronounced incurable by bourgeois "authorities". A limb totally severed for 24 hours and another in three pieces were successfully rejoined. A worker with severe burns over 98 per cent of his body surface and a Red Guard whose heart had stopped beating for 25 minutes were saved.

This collection of reports aims to tell how China's medical workers have been guided by Mao Tsetung Thought to serve the people wholeheartedly, how they constantly improve their skill, and dare to break untrodden paths to scale new peaks in medical science.

Acupuncture Anaesthesia

中国的针刺麻醉

China's medical and scientific workers have created acupuncture anaesthesia — a unique Chinese anaesthetizing technique. They have achieved this by applying modern scientific knowledge and methods, summing up and improving on the experience of traditional Chinese medicine in stopping pain and curing ailments with needling.

Administering acupuncture anaesthesia involves inserting one or more needles at certain points of a patient's limbs, ears, nose or face. Analgesia follows after a period of induction and stimulation, thereby ensuring safe operations of the head, chest, abdomen or limbs. Using acupuncture instead of conventional anaesthetizing agents to induce analgesia is a breakthrough in surgical practice.

These accounts give the reader some idea of this anaesthetizing method and of its application in surgery.

Wang Kuei and Li Hsiang-hsiang

by Li Chi

李 季：王贵与李香香

Lively and unaffected in language and distinctly national in style, Wang Kuei and Li Hsiang-hsiang is a narrative poem written in the form of a northern Shensi folk song. The theme of the poem is the love of a lad and a lass, both of poor peasant families, in northern Shensi Province during the period of the agrarian revolution. Laying bare the infamies and crimes of the reactionaries — the landlords and the warlords — the poem sings the praises of the heroic struggle waged by the peasant masses and the victory of the agrarian revolution. The volume is pleasingly illustrated with coloured drawings.

The Red Lantern

— A Modern Revolutionary Peking Opera

Revised by the China Peking Opera Troupe

革命现代京剧《红灯记》

The story of The Red Lantern happened in an enemy-occupied area in North China during the War of Resistance Against Japan. It tells about the courageous struggle waged by the three generations of the family of Li Yu-ho, a member of the Chinese Communist Party, against the Japanese aggressors in safe-keeping and delivering a secret code.

Communist Party member and railway switchman Li Yu-ho was an underground worker of the Party. He accepted an important task from the liaison man of the Eighth Route Army's Pine Peak Base Area, a task assigned by the Party to deliver the secret code to the guerrillas of the Eighth Route Army in the Cypress Mountains. Because of the betrayal of a traitor, Li Yu-ho was arrested and imprisoned. By coercion and cajolery Hatoyama, chief of the Japanese gendarmerie, tried to make Li Yu-ho hand over the code. At the banquet given by the enemy and on the execution ground, the three generations of Li Yu-ho's family never yielded, but bravely carried on the struggle. The ferocious enemy brutally killed Li Yu-ho and his mother Granny Li. Tieh-mei, Li Yu-ho's daughter, carried on the task left by the martyrs. Holding high the red lantern Tieh-mei, led by the Party and helped by the masses, surmounted every difficulty and succeeded in sending the secret code to the guerrillas in the Cypress Mountains. The play ends with the guerrillas of the Cypress Mountains running Hatoyama through with a sword and shooting down traitor Wang Lien-chu in a victorious ambush.

Through the history of the brave struggles waged by the Chinese proletariat from the 1920s to 1930s under the leadership of the Chinese Communist Party, The Red Lantern successfully portrays the brilliant image of Li Yu-ho, the indomitable hero of the Chinese proletariat.

Shachiapang

— A Modern Revolutionary Peking Opera

革命现代京剧《沙家浜》

Shachiapang is an episode of the stirring struggles of the Chinese people led by Chairman Mao Tsetung and the Chinese Communist Party against the aggression of Japanese imperialism (1937-45). Two traitors, Hu Chuan-kuei and Tiao Teh-yi, work hand in glove with the Japanese aggressor Kuroda in an effort to hunt out 18 wounded and sick soldiers of the New Fourth Army recuperating in the town of Shachiapang under the protection of the local people. The struggle is thus unfolded and develops into an intricate plot. There are scenes of Party Secretary Cheng Chien-ming giving instructions, Sister Ah-ching outwitting the wily enemy, Aunt Sha condemning the foe to his face, and the militiaman Wang Fu-ken going to his execution head high — all aim at protecting the 18 soldiers for the victory of the armed struggle.

Shachiapang is a song of praise to Chairman Mao's glorious concept of people's war. Given a particular historical setting, it correctly treats the theme of armed struggle in the light of Chairman Mao's revolutionary line, thereby putting the play on a high ideological plane. In the characters of Political Instructor Kuo Chien-kuang, Sister Ah-ching and Aunt Sha as well as their relationships are embodied the shining results of application of Mao Tsetung Thought, as shown by the combination of armed struggle with underground work and the close ties between the people's army and the popular masses.

Taking Tiger Mountain by Strategy

— A Modern Revolutionary Peking Opera

Revised by the Taking Tiger Mountain by Strategy Group of the Peking Opera Troupe of Shanghai

革命现代京剧《智取威虎山》

The story happened in 1946 on the battlefield of northeast China in the early period of the Chinese People's War of Liberation. It describes a heroic and ingenious battle fought by a pursuit detachment organized by the regimental Party committee of a unit of the Chinese People's Liberation Army in accordance with Chairman Mao's directive "Build stable base areas in the Northeast." The detachment went deep into the mountains and forests in the Mutanchiang area where they aroused the masses and wiped out the dihard Kuomintang bandit gang headed by Vulture.

By combining revolutionary realism with revolutionary romanticism, this opera brings out in bold relief the splendid image of the proletarian hero Yang Tzu-jung, a PLA scout platoon leader, and warmly eulogizes Chairman Mao's great thought on people's war.

The birth of this modern revolutionary Peking opera is a tremendous victory for Chairman Mao's proletarian revolutionary line on literature and art.

The present translation has been made from the Chinese script of the opera as staged in July 1970.

With coloured stage photographs and selected arias from the opera.

Red Detachment of Women

— A Modern Revolutionary Ballet

革命现代舞剧《红色娘子军》

The modern revolutionary ballet, Red Detachment of Women, describes the founding, growth and maturing of a revolutionary armed force, the Red Women's Company, under the correct leadership of the Chinese Communist Party, during the Second Revolutionary Civil War (1927-37). Warmly praising the stirring revolutionary life of the masses with the brilliant guidance of Mao Tsetung Thought, the ballet portrays people's war in a spectacular setting of storm and stress. It sings of the people's army, in which women play a prominent role.

In this creative work, the revolutionary artists followed Chairman Mao's directives, "Make the past serve the present and foreign thing serve China" and "Let a hundred flowers blossom; weed through the old to bring forth the new", and waged sharp struggle against the sinister counter-revolutionary revisionist line in literature and art. They made a fundamental change in the art form of the ballet.

Distinct in class and mass character, and symbolic of our great time, this new ballet presents such proletarian heroes as Hung Chang-ching and Wu Ching-hua successfully. It opens new vistas for the development and blossoming of Chinese ballet.

There are 119 stage photographs, 21 in colour, and a selection of music scores from the ballet.

Song of the Dragon River

— A Modern Revolutionary Peking Opera

革命现代京剧《龙江颂》

The modern revolutionary Peking opera Song of the Dragon River draws its theme from China's rural socialist construction. The time is 1963. The story centres on the question of Dragon River production brigade flooding its own 300 mu of cropland in order to save 90,000 mu of crops in drought-stricken communes in the Rear Mountain. The opera brings out the communist behaviour and the revolutionary outlook of China's commune members since they have become masters of their own affairs.

The opera shows the fierce struggle between proletariat and bourgeoisie, between the two lines and two ways of thinking in the historical period of socialism. Most successful is the portrayal of Chiang Shui-ying, a rural Party secretary, as a heroic figure in the struggle.

On the Docks

— A Modern Revolutionary Peking Opera
革命现代京剧《海港》

Drawn from the militant life of Chinese dockers, the opera On the Docks describes the sharp and complicated class struggle involved in a rush job of loading cargo bound for Africa. The dockers, whose working-class spirit of internationalism is represented by Fang Hai-chen, get on with the loading, while the class enemy tries by every means to sabotage the work. With Fang Hai-chen to lead them, the dockers frustrate the class enemy's plot and complete the task on time.

“The people who have triumphed in their own revolution should help those still struggling for liberation. This is our internationalist duty.” This opera presents one episode in workers' struggle which shows how the Chinese people carry out Chairman Mao's teaching and support the revolutionary cause of peoples in other lands.

Selected Stories of Lu Hsun

鲁迅小说选

Lu Hsun (1881-1936), chief commander of China's modern cultural revolution, was not only a great thinker and political commentator but the founder of modern Chinese literature.

In his early life Lu Hsun was a revolutionary democrat, who later matured into a communist. His earlier works were mainly stories, 18 of the more important of which, plus the preface to Call to Arms, his first short story collection, have been selected for this volume. The stories show clearly his method in this period of creative writing, thoroughgoing critical realism, a method closely related to the outright anti-imperialist and anti-feudal views which he formed in his early days.

In his preface to Call to Arms, the author tells his motive in choosing literature as a weapon of struggle. This will give readers a deeper understanding of Lu Hsun's stories.

Old Tales Retold

by Lu Hsun

鲁 迅：故事新编

Old Tales Retold is the third collection of stories by Lu Hsun. It contains eight stories of historical subjects.

These eight tales are based on fables and legends of ancient China. Lu Hsun's attitude in writing historical stories was "to take a subject and write it up freely, adding some colouring of your own," which means "using ancient things to satirize the present." "Forging the Swords," for example, fully expresses the will of oppressed people to resist and take revenge; "Curbing the Flood," "Opposing Aggression" and "Leaving the Pass" etc. ridicule the absurdities of the traitorous Kuomintang regime and the reactionary "scholars" it fostered.

Lu Hsun's vigorous militant spirit is revealed throughout the collection and, his combining romanticism with realism adds much to the beauty of the tales.

The True Story of Ah Q

by Lu Hsun

鲁 迅：阿Q正传

The True Story of Ah Q, a representative work of Lu Hsun, is looked upon as a masterpiece in modern Chinese literature.

This story was written in 1921, set in the China of 1911, the China of the period of the old-democratic revolution. It is the tragedy of Ah Q, farm labourer, who suffers a lifetime of humiliation and persecution, dreams of revolution and ends up on the execution ground. The story colourfully reflects the rural conditions in semi-feudal and semi-colonial China — a situation of sharp class contradictions and the peasant masses' demand for revolution.

The story penetratingly analyses the character of Ah Q, whose thinking is influenced and poisoned by the feudal ruling class which exploits and oppresses him. The feudal oppression affects Ah Q to the point of a neurosis in which he indulges in "moral victories," puts up no resistance to the evils of the contemporary society and cannot be really awakened. But, while revealing Ah Q's weakness of will, the author shows deep sympathy for him. It was the author's sincere hope that the broad masses of peasants, victims of feudal oppression and imperialist aggression, might be aroused and rise in resistance against them.

The simplicity and directness of style, and the beauty of language used by Lu Hsun in writing The True Story of Ah Q place it high among literary works of the time for both content and style.

Man of a Special Cut

by Hu Wan-chun

胡万春：特殊性格的人

Gathered here are nine of the best stories written by Hu Wan-chun between the years 1955-60.

Hu Wan-chun works in a rolling mill. With the help of the Party he has made speedy progress as a writer. Most of his writings are devoted to the life and struggles of the working class. They truly reflect the communist spirit of the workers as shown by their "daring to think, daring to say and daring to do" during a big upsurge of construction.

“Man of a Special Cut” is a story of a government cadre who by relying on Party leadership and closely co-operating with the workers, successfully completes the reconstruction of a railway track.

“Ride On! Go on Fighting!” gives a vivid manifestation of the lofty communist spirit of the older generation.

“What Instructor Pu Kao Thought” is based on the relationship between an instructor and his apprentice, in which we see the honesty and high principles of the veteran workers in helping to train young workers.

“Flesh and Blood” is a remarkable story. It is a vehement indictment of the exploiting class and its reactionary rule in the old society.

On the Long March with Chairman Mao

by Chen Chang-feng

陈昌奉：跟随毛主席长征

The Chinese Workers' and Peasants' Red Army, led by the Chinese Communist Party and Chairman Mao Tsetung, carried out the world-renowned Long March of 25,000 li (12,500 kilometres) between 1934 and 1936.

At the end of 1933, the Kuomintang bandit gang launched its fifth campaign of encirclement against the Central Red Army. It was owing to the erroneous "Left" line in the Party that the Red Army failed to smash the enemy's attack and had to withdraw from the revolutionary base in Kiangsi and embark on the Long March in October 1934.

At the outset of the expedition, the "Leftists" continued their erroneous line, with the result that the Central Red Army was more than once precipitated into danger and sustained heavy losses. In January 1935 the Party Central Committee convened the Enlarged Conference of the Political Bureau at Tsunyi, which put an end to the "Left" opportunist leadership in the Party and established that of Comrade Mao Tsetung. Thus the Party and the Red Army were saved from ruin at the critical moment and the Chinese revolution regained its footing. After that, the Red Army, under the correct leadership of Comrade Mao Tsetung, frustrated the encirclement, pursuit and interception by hundreds of thousands of enemy troops and overcame the dangers and difficulties. It succeeded in reaching northern Shensi, bringing the Long March to a victorious close.

This book is a record of the author's own experience between 1930 and 1936 when he served as Chairman Mao's orderly and later as his bodyguard. Here he gives his impressions of the Chairman's life and work, especially during the Long March, and the activities of the Red Army in time of trial. As reminiscences of the revolution, it highlights the historical events of that period and brings into bold relief Chairman Mao's revolutionary outlook and plain living.

Attached are a map showing the route of the Long March and several illustrations.

The Seeds and Other Stories

by Chen Hung-shan and others

种子及其他故事

The fourteen stories included in this book were all written during the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution. They reflect in different ways the changes the Chinese people have undergone in their mental world and the achievements they have made in the socialist revolution and construction. Most of the authors are young people who took part in the incidents they describe. Although they write only in their spare time, they form nevertheless an impressive force in contemporary Chinese literature.

The Builders

by Liu Ching

柳 青：创业史

After the land was distributed among the tillers in the Land Reform of the early fifties, two kinds of "builders" appeared in China's countryside. While the vast majority wanted to build a society that would benefit all the people, to farm together, helping one another, advancing in stages from mutual-aid teams to co-operatives, and on to more advanced forms, quite a few wanted to go it alone, to build up their family fortunes in the old way, looking out only for their personal interests. This novel describes the struggle between these two trends. The author probes deeply into the characters who populate his fascinating book and who are presented in a style that is forceful, warmly human, delightfully humorous, and richly flavourful.

The novel is illustrated with handsome drawings.

The Story of the Modern Peking Opera THE RED LANTERN

现代京剧《红灯记》的故事

The story took place in an enemy-occupied area in north China during China's War of Resistance Against Japan. Li Yu-ho, railway switchman, Chinese Communist Party member, was given a task by the Party to transmit a secret code to the guerrillas in the Cypress Mountains. He was arrested due to a traitor's betrayal. Hatoyama, chief of the Japanese gendarmerie, tried by every means to force him to hand over the secret code. He was uncompromising and unyielding and the enemy failed in his plots. Finally Li and his mother were executed by the savage enemy, and his daughter Tieh-mei took over the martyrs' unfinished task. Under the Party's leadership and helped by the people, and with the red lantern as inspiration, she overcame many difficulties and succeeded in delivering the code to the Cypress Mountains guerrillas. The story ends with the guerrillas wiping out Hatoyama and the traitor Wang Lien-chu in a successful ambush.

The Story of the Modern Peking Opera TAKING TIGER MOUNTAIN BY STRAT- EGY

现代京剧《智取威虎山》的故事

The story happened in 1946 on the battlefield of northeast China in the early period of the Chinese People's War of Liberation.

It describes a battle fought by a pursuit detachment of the Chinese People's Liberation Army, which went deep into the mountains and forests of the Mutanchiang area where they aroused the masses and wiped out the die-hard Kuomintang bandit gang headed by Vulture.

Yang Tzu-jung, a PLA scout platoon leader in the story, is the splendid image of a proletarian hero who is courageous, quick-witted and boundlessly loyal to the Party.

The Story of the Modern Peking Opera SHACHIAPANG

现代京剧《沙家浜》的故事

The story takes its name from the town where the action took place — Shachiapang in Changshu County of Kiangsu Province. The setting is China's War of Resistance Against Japan (1937-45).

The Chinese traitors Hu Chuan-kuei and Tiao Teh-yi worked hand in glove with the Japanese army colonel Kuroda to capture eighteen sick and wounded New Fourth Army men recuperating in the town. But the Communist Party organization and the people of Shachiapang protected their people's armymen, fighting bravely and resourcefully against both the Japanese invaders and the local traitors. United as one, the armymen and people wiped out the enemy and again liberated Shachiapang.

Prominent among the principal characters are the New Fourth Army political instructor, Kuo Chien-kuang, the woman underground Party worker, Sister Ah-ching, and Aunt Sha, a revolutionary mother dear to the people's soldiers.

The Story of the Modern Ballet RED DETACHMENT OF WOMEN

现代舞剧《红色娘子军》的故事

The action took place on Hainan Island, south China, during the ten-year civil war period, 1927-37. Wu Ching-hua, daughter of a poor peasant, refused to be the slave of the Tyrant of the South and escaped from the despotic landlord's manor, only to be caught and beaten unconscious. The Red Army cadre Hung Chang-ching, on a scouting mission, discovered her and showed her the road to revolution. Ching-hua joined the Red Army.

On the Tyrant's birthday, Chang-ching led the Women's Company into the bandit lair. But Ching-hua was impatient to seek personal revenge and fired premature shots at the Tyrant, allowing him to escape. Criticized by her company commander, Ching-hua was helped to correct her mistake by Chang-ching, who enabled her to understand the truth: "Only by emancipating all mankind can the proletariat achieve its own final emancipation."

In a critical encounter with the enemy, Chang-ching was badly wounded and captured. He bitterly denounced the reactionaries on his funeral pyre.

Cocoanut Grove was again liberated, and the Tyrant of the South killed. Ching-hua, who had been admitted to the Party, was appointed Party representative of the Women's Company.

The Rainbow Road

by Hu Chi

胡 奇：五彩路

The Rainbow Road, written in the style of a folk tale, is a vivid story about three Tibetan boys in search of the rainbow road and a happy life.

They lived in a village far, far away in the snow-capped mountains. One day they heard that the Chinese People's Liberation Army had built a bright rainbow road which would bring happiness to the Tibetan people. Wanting to search for happiness they decided to go out and have a look at this road. So they slipped away from home. On their way they met with many trials in crossing turbulent rivers and snow-covered mountains and walking over the scorching desert and vast grassland, constantly threatened by cold, hunger and fatigue. Because they never wavered in their faith, finally, after overcoming numerous difficulties, they found the bright rainbow road and happiness, and so started out on a new life together.

The book contains many illustrations that appeal to children.

The Young Skipper

新来的老大

This is a collection of four short stories that have appeared in the course of China's Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution. Written by workers in different fields, these stories are characterized by clear-cut themes, a rich tang of life, and a fairly wide range of subjects. Through the portrayal of a new generation of people in industry, fishing, service and sea communications, the authors eulogize the profound revolutionary feelings of China's workers, peasants and soldiers for the revolutionary line of Chairman Mao Tsetung and the cause of China's socialist construction.

City Cousin and Other Stories

彩色的田野

This is a collection of eight short stories about life in China today. The authors describe in glowing terms and from different angles new people that have stepped forth, and new and remarkable events that have occurred throughout the country. In these stories the reader meets a storekeeper in a mountain area who gives her whole heart to serving the peasants, People's Liberation Army men who guard the land and cherish the people. There are also a Party branch secretary who leads fisherfolk to transform their hamlet, a young docker growing in maturity, and young people who go to the countryside from school with lofty aims to build a new village.

These stories, most of them written by amateurs, are near enough to life to afford the reader to share in the thoughts of the characters.

The Scholars

by Wu Ching-tzu

吴敬梓：儒林外史

The Scholars, an eighteenth century satire, is outstanding among Chinese classical novels. Wu Ching-tzu mercilessly flays the decadence of the literati produced by the feudal examination system and ruthlessly exposes the disastrous effects of that institution, the corruption of the feudal regime and the darkness of the feudal society. Here the author realistically portrays all types of character: the scholar, the pseudo-poet, the merchant, the corrupt official, the woman pining for her lover, etc., and presents a lively picture of eighteenth century China through them.

To Find Men Truly Great and Noble-Hearted We Must Look Here in the Present

— In Praise of the Modern Revolutionary Peking Opera Taking Tiger Mountain by Strategy

——赞革命现代京剧《智取威虎山》

The modern revolutionary Peking opera Taking Tiger Mountain by Strategy, carefully revised, perfected and polished to the last detail, now glitters with surpressing splendour. Like a radiant banner for battle it flutters high on the stage of Peking opera of socialist China. With proletarian world outlook and method of art, Taking Tiger Mountain by Strategy has successfully created the brilliant images of proletarian heroes. Its birth is one of the fruitful results of China's Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution and a great victory of Chairman Mao's proletarian revolutionary line in literature and art.

This book is a collection of commentaries, including "Strive to Create the Brilliant Images of Proletarian Heroes" and three others. They enthusiastically praise the splendid successes which Taking Tiger Mountain by Strategy has achieved in its play-writing, portrayal of characters and revolution of music and dance by resolutely implementing Chairman Mao's revolutionary line in literature and art.

红色娘子军

This is a picture-story book about Ching-hua, a slave girl in the house of Nan Pa-tien, a tyrannical landlord on Hainan Island. She is so cruelly treated that she runs away and joins the Red Army with the help of a cadre named Hung Chang-ching. In the grim revolutionary struggles she fights bravely. And after Hung gives his life in covering the withdrawal of the main forces, Ching-hua shoulders the tasks left by the martyr and leads her comrades in counter-attacking the enemy. She kills Nan Pa-tien in the battle.

The story pays tribute to the unconquerable spirit of the Red Army fighters and to the vigorous revolutionary struggle waged by the people of Hainan Island under the leadership of the Chinese Communist Party.

Tunnel Warfare

地道战

Tunnel Warfare, a picture book based on the film by the same name, tells how the army and people of an anti-Japanese base area in China's Hopei Province carried on their heroic fight against Japanese aggression in the years 1937 to 1945.

Guided by Chairman Mao's thinking on people's war, every man, woman and child took an active part in the struggle. In close co-ordination with the Eighth Route Army units, they met the onslaughts of the enemy with extensive guerrilla warfare, and created the well-known tunnel warfare, hitting the enemy hard and finally smashing his savage "mopping-up" campaigns.

Stories from Liu Hu-lan's Childhood

刘胡兰的小故事

Liu Hu-lan, a revolutionary heroine during the Chinese People's War of Liberation (1945-49), was born in 1932 in a peasant family of the village of Yunchouhsi, Wenshui County, Shansi Province. When she was only thirteen years old she was active in revolutionary work. She led the women of her village around in giving aid to the battle front; and she joined in the peasants' fight against landlords and tyrants. She was resolute in the most difficult and dangerous situations.

The stories in this picture book are only a few of the tales of Liu Hu-lan's childhood, at a time when the Chinese people were going through the bitter period of the War of Resistance Against Japan (1937-45).

Little Sisters of the Grassland

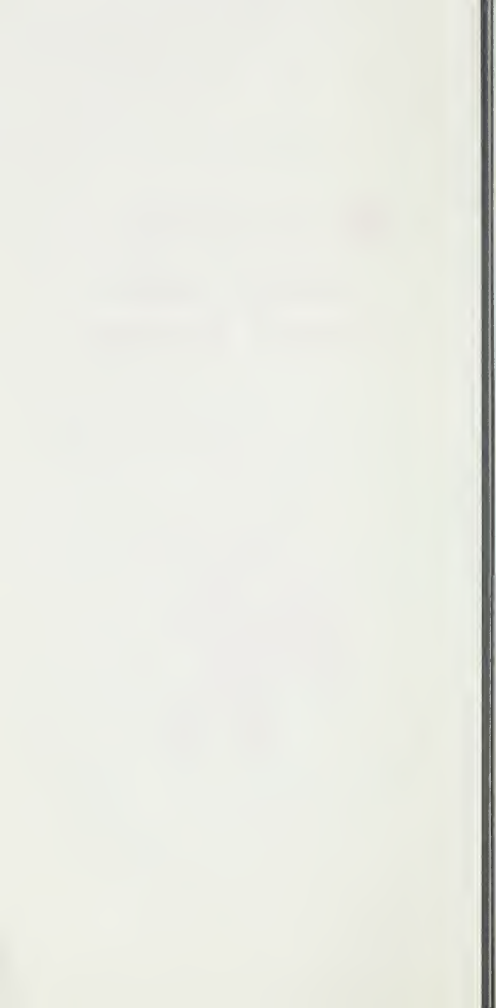

草原英雄小姐妹

This children's picture book Little Sisters of the Grassland is based on the animated cartoon of the same title. It tells the story of two little Mongolian sisters' battle against a blizzard to protect commune sheep. The story praises the little girls' revolutionary spirit of devotion to public interests and love of the collective.

Elementary Chinese (in two parts)

基础汉语（上、下册）

This book is intended for the use of beginners who learn Chinese as a foreign language. When they finish the book, they will be able to carry on everyday conversation and read simple Chinese. It consists of 66 lessons (including 12 lessons of phonetics and oral practice) in two volumes, with an appendix of vocabulary at the end.

This book aims at the practical skills of speaking and reading Chinese, not at a comprehensive and systematic knowledge of Chinese grammar. From lesson 13 on, simple notes are given to the fundamental grammar points in each lesson, and model sentences illustrating those points are provided for the benefit of the students.

Chinese Reader (in two parts)

汉语读本(上、下册)

This Chinese Reader, being a follow-up course of Elementary Chinese, aims at further improving the student's reading and speaking ability. It is hoped that by the time he has finished this book, he will have been able to carry on conversations in simple Chinese and, with the help of a dictionary, read Chinese newspapers and periodicals as well as literature of the popular kind.

The work consists of two volumes. In each lesson the compilers have provided explanatory notes on words and phrases, bearing in mind the linguistic peculiarities that might prove difficult to the foreign student. A vocabulary list is appended to each volume.

Historical Revolutionary Songs

革命历史歌曲

This is a collection of ten historical revolutionary songs.

They are: Workers and Peasants Are One Family, Graduation Song, Song of Advance, The Great Road, Workers and Peasants Make Revolution and New Women composed by Nieh Erh; Battle Song of Resistance Against Japan and Go to the Enemy's Rear by Hsien Hsing-hai; March of the Swords by Mai Hsin, and Battle March by Pei Chih. These songs are familiar to many revolutionary people.

Illuminated by Chairman Mao Tsetung's proletarian line on art and literature and proceeding from the class viewpoint, revolutionary art and literary workers have today re-written or revised the words. The new words stress the leadership of Chairman Mao and the Chinese Communist Party, Chairman Mao's great concepts on the people's army and people's war, and the revolutionary role of the worker and peasant masses. Thus the revolutionary nature of the melodies is better brought out and the actual conditions of the revolutionary struggles of the time more effectively portrayed.

Singing or hearing these historical revolutionary songs keeps ever fresh in our minds the glorious traditions of the Chinese revolution led by Chairman Mao. The songs inspire us to follow our great leader Chairman Mao closely at all times and never falter on the road of continuing the revolution.

Revolutionary Songs of China

中国革命歌曲

This is a collection of four Chinese revolutionary songs.

The East Is Red, Sailing the Seas Depends on the Helmsman and Singing of the Socialist Motherland express the profound proletarian feelings of the Chinese people for their great leader Chairman Mao Tsetung and their socialist motherland. The Three Main Rules of Discipline and the Eight Points for Attention praise their high, militant spirit in waging socialist revolution under the guidance of Chairman Mao's revolutionary line.

Rent Collection Courtyard (Album)

— Sculptures of Oppression and Revolt

收租院（泥塑群像）

A large-format album of photographs of the more than one hundred life-size clay figures comprising the "Rent Collection Courtyard." These figures were produced collectively by a group of revolutionary Chinese art workers who, holding high the great red banner of Mao Tsetung Thought in the great proletarian cultural revolution, studied and applied Chairman Mao's works in a creative way, and went deep into life and integrated with the workers, peasants and soldiers. Their sculptures depict how, in the dark, pre-liberation days of reactionary Kuomintang rule, Liu Wentsai, a tyrannical landlord of Tayi County, in Szechuan Province, southwestern China, mercilessly exploited and oppressed his peasant tenants and how they rose in revolt. The work is in six sections: delivering the rent; checking the grain; weighing the grain; reckoning up the accounts; enforcing payment and seizing power. The album pictures these in a number of striking groups and close-ups of individual figures.

Tibet Today

(Album)

“今日西藏” 画册

Tibet Today is a pictorial album which reflects the epochal changes in Tibet since its peaceful liberation in 1951, and especially after the democratic reform of 1959.

The album shows the people's determination and enthusiasm in building a socialist, new Tibet, as well as the happy life of the million Tibetan people who were slaves but who, led by Chairman Mao Tsetung and the Chinese Communist Party, overthrew the reactionary and backward rule of serfdom.

Pictures taken in the rich fields of the south, lush grazing grounds of the north, in the new factories, in classrooms — all point up the achievements since liberation in industry, agriculture, livestock breeding, culture and education, and in medical and health services in Tibet.

Other pictures delight the eye with splendid views on the Tibetan Plateau, the snow-capped mountains and glaciers, seas of clouds, wide rivers, and ancient buildings in the traditional style of the Tibetan nationality. There are 95 illustrations, 45 of which are in colour.
